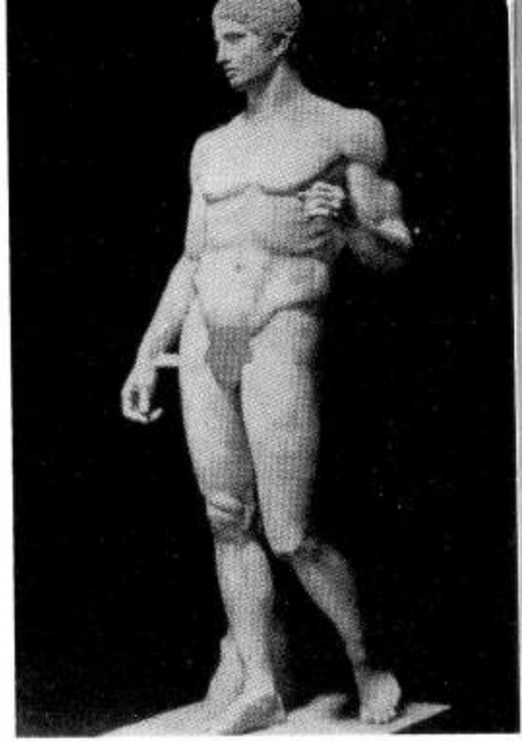
The Discobolus, by Myron, Fifth Century, B. C.

GREEK SCULPTURE



The Doryphorus, Roman copy of Fifth Century B. C. type.

The ancient Greeks were master artists. They achieved new heights of excellence in architecture, drama, poetry and philosophy. But it was in the field of sculpture that they attained their greatest glory.

The rise of culture in Greece was extremely rapid. A remarkable spirit of intellectual curiosity and enterprise liberated the minds of men. They began to wonder about science and nature, and sought answers to those questions which have since motivated the efforts of all scientists and philosophers. Individualism grew; intellectual activity rapidly increased; new art expression was born.

Architecture expressed the newly awakened concern for utility and the appropriate use of materials. Magnificent buildings, such as the Parthenon, were constructed as settings and frames to house the glorious sculpture with which these ancient people honored their deities.

Within less than two centuries, from the crude beginnings of Greek sculpture in the Seventh Century B.C., the perfection of the Golden Age of Pericles was reached. The high culture of ancient Greece reached levels before unknown in th history of man. And sculpture was its noblest flower.

The Grecian love of physical perfection was the natural companion to their perfection in art. It expressed itself in physical culture and athletic contests, and inspired those magnificent works of statuary which the world has held in highest esteem for twenty-five hundred years.

The Greeks were the most artistic people who ever lived, and to them the male physique at its best was among the most sublime forms of beauty. The true poetry of rythmic form embodied in the bronze and marble figures of the beautifully developed male physique was the highest expression of their great art.

Waisting Away

Fig.2

A soft, flabby, unmuscular waistline ruins the appearance of many a guy who otherwise might be admired for his physique. Perhaps more than any other feature of the body, the waist is the barometer of physical condition. The average man who loves his coffee with cream, his pie, and his beer, sooner or later finds himself spreading in the mid-section. Exercise alone probably won't keep that trim youthful waist for you. Eating is important, too. But assuming one goes easy on foods which tend to build up fatty tissue (often first deposited in the form of an unsightly paunch), exercise can help maintain or achieve a trim, muscular waist.

Whether you use weights or not, along with your push-ups you can easily do sit-ups and leg raises. They're doubtless the most effective exercise for keeping down the waistline. And you don't need a gym for this kind of work-out. Sit-ups can easily be performed on a chair placed sideways next to a bed or some heavy piece of furniture under which you can anchor your feet. (See Fig. 1 & 2). Then, with your hands behind your head, you can go to it! If you have a tend-

VITAMINS

IN YOUR DAILY DIET

Science does not yet know the complete functions performed by vitamins. It does know, however, that proper vitamin intake is essential to health. Vitamins are necessary for healthy eyes, skin, blood, bones, nerves and hair. Different vitamins affect different parts of the body.

For instance, Vitamin A, found in egg yolk, butter, and vegetables, is needed for healthy skin, eyes and hair. Vitamin B, niacin, riboflavin and thiamin are essential to the release of energy from foods, the normal functioning of the heart, blood vessels, digestion and nervous system. The B Complex Vitamins may be found in cereals, fruits, vegetables, milk, eggs and fish. Vitamin C, found in citrus fruits, liver and green vegetables, is of special importance to the bodybuilder. It is necessary for the proper absorption of protein by the body, as well as for healthy bones, tissue and teeth. D, the "sunshine vitamin," also found in fish livers, egg yolks and fortified milk, benefits teeth, nerves and bones. And other vitamins do their own jobs, too.

Vitamins are very gregarious. They gang together and help each other. For radiant good health, the

FOR EMOTIONAL HEALTH

Man has learned much about his body, but there is still much he does not know about the mysterious biochemistry of life. For instance, it was only recently that scientists undertook to discover the relationship between emotional disturbances and vitamin deficiency. And the results of this study by scientists from two great American universities were astounding: they learned that a program of large therapeutic doses of all the vitamins and minerals helped 90% of the emotionally disturbed who participated in the testing program!

Those treated suffered from schizophrenia, depression, hysteria and general neuroses. Results in some cases were dramatic. Sleeplessness, severe depression, mental confusion, vague aches and pains, irritability, fatigue—all were dispelled by the use of "nutritional replacement" in the form of over fifty biochemical substances (including all of the vitamins) administered to the sufferers, all of whom felt they had been eating an adequate diet.

As a result of this pioneer study, and subsequent research on this important subject, the cure for many

CREED

OF THE GRECIAN GUILD

The Grecian Guild is a brotherhood of body-builders, artists and physique students dedicated to those qualities first perceived and perfected by the people of ancient Greece. The Guild is universal in its precepts, embracing the best in all nations and cultures, but in its name it honors the high ideals and glorious achievements which characterized Grecian civilization during its Golden Age and which have since enriched the lives of all nations. It is pledged to the perfection of the human body as the divinely created temple of the mind and spirit; to the pure beauty of art, particularly as it is embodied in the human physique at its best; to the radiant health of body, mind and spirit which frees man from the vulgar and base and inspires him to noble ideals and endeavors; to the accomplishment of the best of which each man is capable; to the love of truth, honor, beauty, God and native land.

GRECIAN OF THE QUARTER

H. PALMER ROWE, our "Grecian of the Quarter," is quite a man about town down in his native Memphis, Tenn. At twenty-six, he has many accomplishments behind him, and great plans for the future.

After elementary school in Memphis, Palmer attended Augusta Military Academy, where he was on the track team and rifle team. His early college work was done at Southwestern in Memphis and at the University of Tennessee. Palmer, always interested in athletics, played basketball and badminton at Southwestern. He also took part in school plays, wrote for the school paper, sang second bass in the Glee Club and pledged SAE Fraternity.

In common with many other young men, Palmer found his studies interrupted by the call to service. He joined the Air Force and spent two years in England at Manston RAFB.

After his discharge Palmer returned to Memphis and married Martha, a Southwestern graduate. Then, with his characteristic determination, he returned to his studies, this time at Southern Methodist University in Dallas. At SMU, Palmer was a senior psychology major taking pre-med courses in preparation for the study of psychiatry, his goal. But Fate took a hand and Palmer and Martha were in a bad automobile accident. This forced them to leave SMU and to return to Memphis for care. Several months thereafter, the Rowes became the proud parents of a baby girl, christened Lisa.

Since his return to Memphis, Palmer has been Membership Extension Manager of the Memphis Better Business Bureau. But this versatile and able young man, who might go far in the business world, has not forgotten his goal. He is already making plans to finish his pre-med work at Memphis State, going to night classes.

Palmer is a well-rounded young man with a variety of interests. His hobbies are bodybuilding (for which he uses a 225 pound set of barbells and dumbbells), philately (stamp-collecting, that is!), photography and correspondence with others who have like interests. Palmer's bodybuilding has helped produce his enviable build. He is an ardent amateur photographer with his own darkroom and photo equipment.

Palmer Rowe is a young

Special Report To Members

An organization of bodybuilders, artists and physique students is something now. The establishment of the GRECIAN GUILD was therefore bound to create quite a stir in the physique world. All over the nation, there are those who have long felt that such an organization would fill a great need. Many of our members exercise regularly in gyms but others work out in their own homes, pretty much apart from the physique world. Knowing that they are a part of an organization with other members sharing their ideals and interests means much to them. It helps provide the inspiration to continue working toward the accomplishment of the best of which they are capable.

The response to the Guild's call for members has been splendid. Men from all over the United States are now members of the National Chapter and subscribers to the GUILD PICTORIAL, including doctors, lawyers, teachers and clergymen. But there are a few hold-outs. These states still aren't represented, as of this date: Idaho, Nevada, North Dakota, Rhode Island, South Dakota and Utah. And here's a special word to potential "Grecians" in those states. What's the matter, fellows? WE WANT YOU! Join the growing brotherhood of Grecians. Be a part of this great brotherhood, and help remove your state from the Guild's "No Members" list. Let us hear from you today.

While a few states have no members, other states have many. Where do most Guild members live? The following states lead in members, in this order: California, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, Texas, North Carolina and Florida. There are also members in Canada, Mexico, Hawaii and the Canal Zone. And there are over half again as many members of the Guild as there are non-member subscribers to the PICTORIAL.

If the Guild is to become what we all want it to be, WE MUST HAVE THE SUPPORT OF EVERY MEMBER. Send or give a copy of the PICTORIAL to those guys who you know will be interested. Help make the Guild a truly nationwide organization including every man who is qualified for membership. Every Grecian is a membership committee of one. We're depending on you, so do your best to enroll at least one other member. And watch the PICTORIAL for future "progress reports."

ency to spread, at least three sets of not less than fifteen repetitions should be performed every other day.

Leg raises can just as easily be done at home. Place your hands behind your head and grasp the bed springs .or table top) for support. (See Fig. 3 & 4). And then raise away! Use the same number of reps and sets as with sit-ups.

Better watch your waist! Once it has spread, it's no easy job to trim it down.

To the "Sunshine City," Tucson. Here, in this ever-summer land surrounded by beautiful mountains, bodybuilding is a popular sport. The YMCA, one of the best in the country, has an excellent bodybuilding program, as does Jim Drinkward's gym. From Tucson the Guild will continue to offer everything it has before. When you're visiting or passing through this beautiful Winter Vacation Area, drop by to see us. We'll be happy to see you, and so will Tucson.

Vitamins

body must have them all in sufficient quantity. You would starve to death if you ate nothing but vitamins, for they do not furnish energy nor build tissue. But, on the other hand, no matter how much food you ate, you could never achieve good health without vitamins.

Vitamins come from the food we eat. A varied diet, including plenty of dairy products, meat, fresh vegetables and cereals, assures most people of sufficient vitamin intake. Just to make sure, however, many bodybuilders take a good vitamin supplement. But it will be cheaper in the long run if you'll see your doctor first.

emotional disturbances may be imminent. Those who have often been laughed at — or pitied — behind their backs as "nuts," "psychos," or "neurotics" may discover that all along they have been suffering from vitamin deficiency. Even the scientists do not know how such a deficiency can upset the emotional balance, but many feel they have adequate proof that vitamins are as essential to emotional health as they are to physical well being.

man with many admirable qualities and with great strength of character. He is a charter member of the National Chapter of the Grecian Guild and we are proud to hail him as a fine example of young American manhood who personifies many of the high ideals of the Guild. And we wish him the best of luck as he returns to his pre-med studies. Such persistence and determination as his will lead him to the accomplishment of those goals he has set for himself. We are proud to claim him as a fellow Grecian!

In Memphis, Palmer lives at 3113 Crump Avenue.

Would YOU like to be chosen "Grecian of the Quarter?" All members are invited to submit biographical sketches and physique photos, on the basis of which future "Grecians of the Quarter" will be selected.

FROM THE MAIL BAG

What He Likes

I read, with great interest, the announcement of the publication of the first issue of the GRECIAN GUILD PICTORIAL, which appeared in Vim magazine. Without delay, I sent for my copy. While waiting for it to arrive, I built up great expectations. Now, after having read the PICTORIAL from cover to cover, I am overjoyed, for it is beyond all my greatest expectations. You are to be commended on this fine work. I only hope the Grecian Guild grows by leaps and bounds to become a great organization of fine young men of Grecian ideals.

I am interested in bodybuilding and physique art, although I was not active in bodybuilding until the last year or so. I enjoy sketching the male physique and I admire the more natural type of physique rather than the massive type.

I hope that it will not be long until local chapters of the Guild can be formed.

P. G. P.

Re The Normal Physique

I enjoyed tremendously the first issue of the wonderful new GRECIAN GUILD PICTORIAL. I like your emphasis on the normal male figure rather than on the bulky type so prevalent in other publications.

A Member's Comments

Received your letter stating that my membership application had been accepted. I was really pleased to have been accepted as a member of an organization that has such high ideals and I hope that those ideals will never be let down by any member.

The quality of the magazine is very fine and so are the pictures therein. It gives one the encouragement to push ahead and try harder to become a person who not only believes in the Guild's ideals but who will also live by them.

W. J. M.

Congratulations

Congratulations on your very fine new magazine, THE GRECIAN GUILD PICTORIAL. One of the best magazines on the Male Physique yet.

Since it is the newest and finest on the subject, I should like to advertise in future issues.

Editor's Note

What would YOU like to see in the GRECIAN GUILD PICTORIAL? Do you prefer photos of the graceful, natural type physique, or the more massive physique? Should there be more articles or fewer ones? Let us hear from you; tell us what you want. After all, the PICTORIAL is published for YOU!

DON'T BE AN ODD NUMBER

Join the growing brotherhood of "Grecians" by becoming a member of the Guild. Everybody is doing it. Why not you? Bodybuilders, artists and physique students are applying for membership from all over. We want you as a brother "Grecian," too, so why not send in your application for membership today?

Read the Grecian Guild CREED in the Membership Section. If you are in accord with the Guild's ideals you are qualified for membership. We are convinced that the Guild is destined to become a great national organization in which you will be proud to hold membership. Be sure that you are in on all the wonderful plans for the future. Eventually, the Guild hopes to have local chapters, regional and national conventions, and summer camps. These plans are discussed fully in the Autumn 1955 issue of the PICTORIAL. But in order to realize these dreams, we MUST have the support of all who share our ideals. Are you one of these? If so, we invite you to send in your Membership Application today.

Remember: Guild membership includes your copy of the PICTORIAL sent to you every quarter BEFORE going to non-member subscribers, plus a quarterly bonus photo of a handsome young Guild model. Your Membership Certificate will be sent you immediately. And, as a bonus for promptness, you will receive with it a beautiful free Guild physique photo, if you apply for membership NOW. Guild members are not listed anywhere except in our own private files, without the member's EXPRESS permission.

WE WANT YOU as a brother "Grecian." So send in your application TODAY, won't you?
